It is the fourth installment in the "Bala Ramayana" series, and the first film since "Ramayanan Jyothi" (2009) to be released in 3D. It was also released in 2D and 3D formats on 30 August 2014. The film revolves around Bala, a lion cub who wants to become a human. It features many of the characters from "Vishwaroopam", including Vaseegaran (Gautham) and Anjali (Kavya Madhavan). The film ends with Balasura's defeat by Lord Rama and Lakshmana. Vaseegaran is sentenced to jail for murdering his wife's lover. On a visit to a temple in Kanchipuram, Anjali meets Bala, a little lion cub in the shape of a human boy. He is aggressive and has no fear of his surroundings. He tells her that he has been set free by the police after they falsified his fingerprints so he could be free to get away from the murder charges. When Anjali protests, Bala grabs her and makes off with them both on his motorcycle. The trio live together for some time, running from the police and jumping on trains to get away from them. During one such train journey, they get off at a small station and hide in an overturned truck that contains old rags and used rubber tyres. A crocodile comes from a nearby stream and grabs Bala's tail, but Bala breaks free and the crocodile is sucked into the wheels of a passing train. Anjali plans to sell Bala at a circus to get enough money to return home, but she has a change of heart when she sees how much he means to Vaseegaran. Bala decides to leave them both and begins walking back to Kanchipuram. He runs past two dacoits who take him prisoner and present him as an offering at their local temple for killing the crocodile. The chief priest catches sight of him and recognises him as something other than human. The chief priest leaves Bala at the temple as a sacrifice to his ancient god, Vasuraman. On the way to the temple Vaseegaran and Anjali are attacked by dacoits but Bala comes to their rescue and fights the men off, killing one of them. The other dies later, but Bala escapes them and continues on his journey. Along the way he runs into two women (Nivetha Thomas and Poonam Bajwa) who give him food.
